CASTLEWOOD HIGH SCHOOL

Castlewood, Virginia

Volume XIII

FOREWORD

The nineteen hundred sixty-three Castletonian endeavors to highlight over forty years of growth at Castlewood High School. Our now new modern high school has developed from a log, one-room school which was located about one mile from the present site of Castlewood High School. At that time the first log school was known as Temple Hill. Later this was torn down and replaced by a two-story brick building with four large classrooms, one of which had a large stage for plays and "speeches," and a large hall. This was named Temple Hill High School.

On January 24, 1948, a fire destroyed Temple Hill High School. The remainder of that high school year was finished at Lebanon High School. The grades were scattered in the church and the lodge hall.

With the inspiring natural beauty of Russell County, no better site could have been chosen for our new school than its present location.

For this reason, we can especially appreciate the foresight of those older than we. Let us remember that the tax-paying citizens has financially enabled our school to prosper and expand. Now it is for us to appreciate and to become a part of our great heritage.

The past remains a part of us and for the wise the past forms a foundation and a center for the new thoughts and associations which we form. Doubts and questions will arise-but remember that only where questions and doubts arise can learning and intellectual advancement take place.

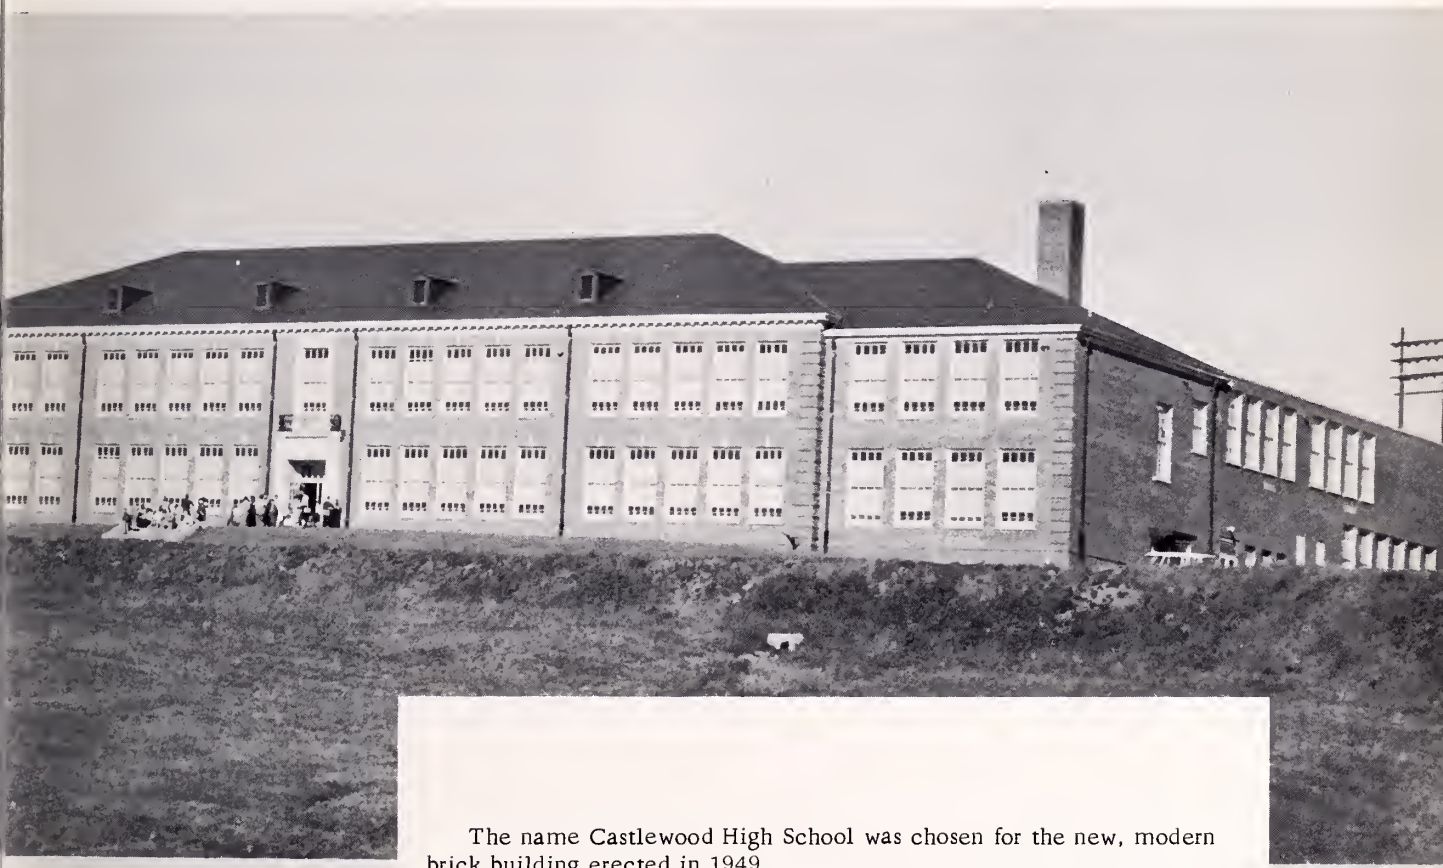
. . . OF PROGRESS AT

CASTLEWOOD HIGH



The name Castlewood High School was chosen for the new, modern brick building erected in 1949.

Being fully accredited and with an enrollment of 670 students, Castlewood High School is one of the finest schools in Southwest Virginia. There are twenty-seven teachers and one full-time guidance teacher in the high school and nineteen teachers in the elementary school. Thirteen buses transport the students to and from school. The high school and the elementary school have separate cafeterias.

The auditorium which was added in 1960 and with a seating capacity of 862 adds much to our enjoyment and appreciation of our school.

Vanishing Americana . . . The One-Room School

We seldom see one now, but generations of capable, successful Americans learned their three R's in schools such as this. We have all read how Abraham Lincoln went to a log school and became President of the United States.

Dr. C.C. Fisher graduated from Emory and Henry College, cum laude, with the class of 1880. That following fall he accepted a position at Temple Hill School where he taught for two years. There he met his wife-to-be (Elizabeth Bickley Dickenson) when he obtained lodging at her father's plantation. He boarded with the Dickensons for $5 a month, which included his room, board, and laundry.

In 1886 Dr. Fisher was licensed by the Southern Methodist Church in Pikeville, Tennessee, as a minister. Later an honorary degree of Doctor of Divinity was conferred upon him by Kentucky Wesley College, Winchester, Kentucky.

The First High School

This is Temple Hill High School built approximately in 1890.

This is the first graduating class of Temple Hill High School (1921). They are Louise Paxton, Robin Dickenson, Stafford Fletcher, and Preston Clay.

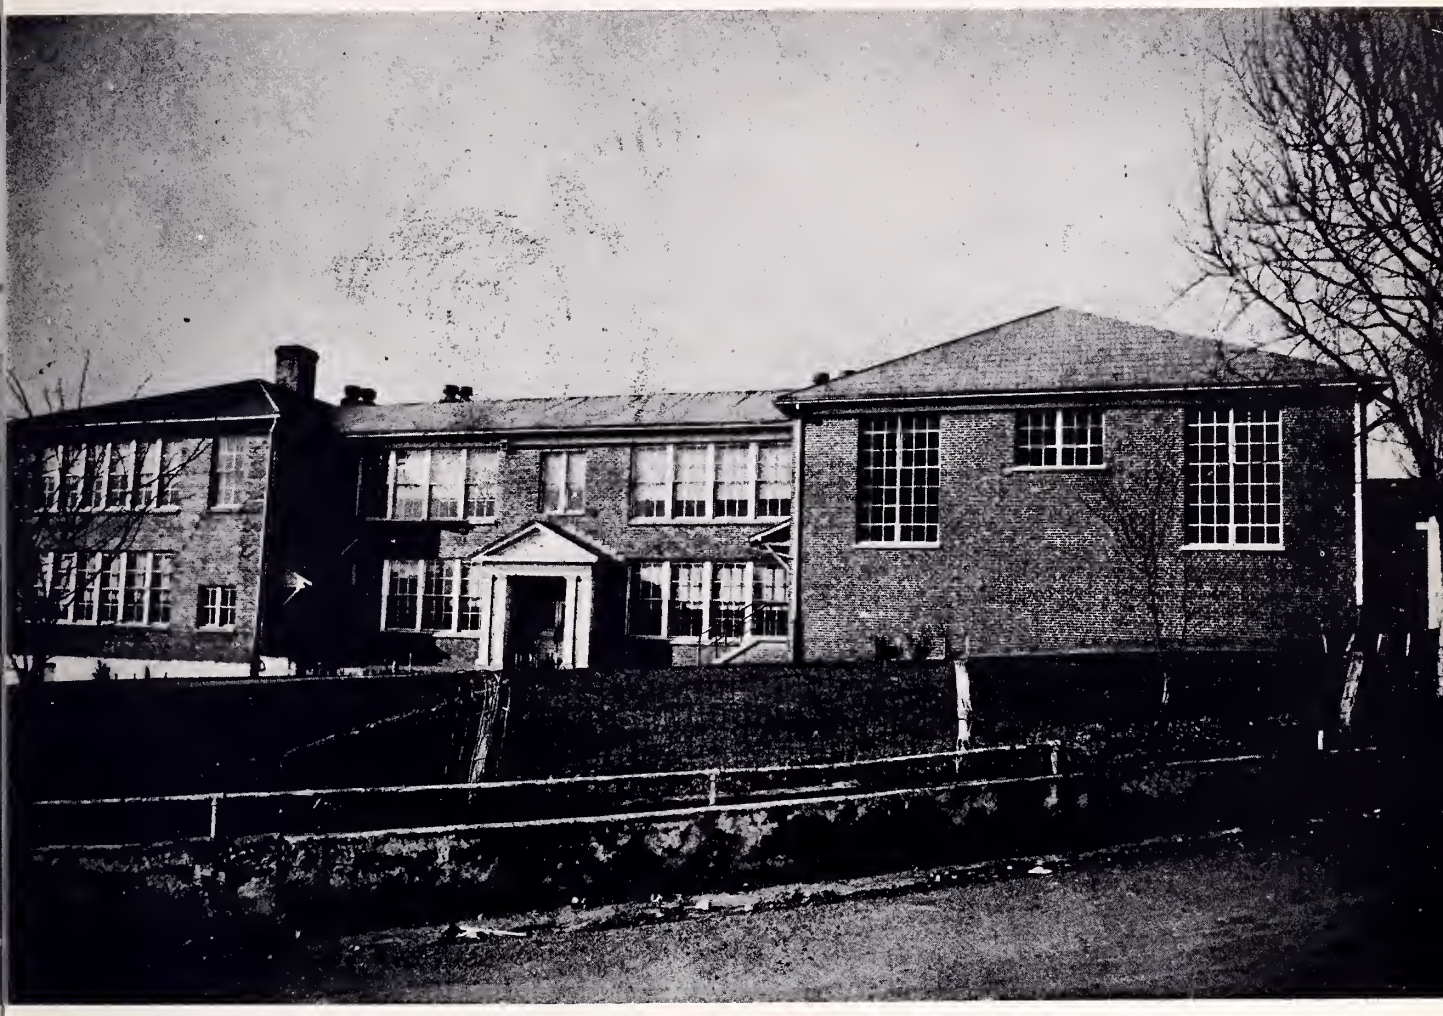
This is the faculty of Temple Hill High School (1921). FIRST ROW: Virginia Holland, Alise Holland, and Bertie Fisher. SECOND ROW: Olive Shomaker Bolton and Miss Molly Dickenson.

Milestones Of Progress

In 1920 the first cornerstone was laid for a new wing to be added to Temple Hill High School. Perched on the stone are Lena Francisco Harding, who now resides in Castlewood with her son, Pitzer; Max Fields, who later became a doctor (deceased, June 17, 1935); Paul Fletcher, who now resides on his farm in Kinston, North Carolina; Thelma Meade Hancock, who teaches social studies at Castlewood High School; and Everette Harding, who is also a teacher in Virginia. This group made up the ninth grade at that time. Today our ninth grade enrollment is 181.

The completion of the first wing of Temple Hill High School in 1921.

Tragedy Adds A Grave Note



This is how Temple Hill High School looked before it burned in 1948. The old high school building, the original Temple Hill School, faces the main entrance. One would not recognize it from the original picture on page nine.

This main building (Old Temple Hill) is flanked on the southeast side by the gymnasium which took care of all indoor sports, chapel programs, and plays.

To the north of the main building is an attractive gable roof-type building which took care of the agricultural, science, and manual training equipment. Some sixty high school students assembled there daily for classroom instruction.

So one can see that from a small beginning, the record growth and development of Castlewood High School has been a continuous one.

Through The Years

The field day was a big event which was held annually in the spring. The all-important occasion consisted of races such as the potato race, sack race, climbing the greasy pole, and catching the greasy pig. Note the old Model T in the foreground.

After retiring Dr. and Mrs. Fisher moved to Bristol, Virginia, to live with their son, Garland Fisher.

Dr. Fisher was proud that 44 years of his life had been spent as an educator, 29 of which were spent as president of Millersburg College, a boarding school for girls, which he owned and operated in Millersburg, Kentucky. They finally leased this property to the Millersburg Military Institute, a preparatory school for boys.

Dr. and Mrs. Fisher lived a long happy life. He passed away at the age of 97; she, 94.

This copy of the closing exercises presented at Abingdon District High in 1883, was obtained through the kindness of Dr. Fisher's niece, Miss Felica Dickenson, of New York City. Castlewood was known then as Bickley Mills. The names of those giving "orations" may reveal to someone an obscure ancestor.

Mr. Graybeal and Susan Muse discuss her college plans.

Mr. John Graybeal is now our full-time guidance advisor. Through his guidance, his interest in young people, and his never-ending perseverance are characteristics of a teacher who is high on our list of fond memories at C.H.S.

We, the class of 1963, wish to thank him for being a patient listener and a close friend to all of us.

ASSISTANT PRINCIPAL

Mr. J. M. Tarwater is our new assistant principal. He came to us from Saltville High School. He has shown much ability in handling the duties connected with his position. His ever-present smile and his good disposition have endeared the students to him.

Helen Meade, our school secretary, keeps busy with her many chores. Even though she may have mimeograph ink on her hands, she still wears a smile on her face.

Americans: Facing Facts

Mr. Tarwater summarizes his lecture with the following statement: "Although we may not be conscious of it, all of us engage in economic activities and are vitally affected by the operation of our economic system. Economics, to be effective and valuable, must show us how to judge correctly the economic changes that affect us and our society."

A Debt to The Past

Looking over old school yearbooks can be fun. The pictures now belong to the past, forming part of a school history. As we study, work, and play this year, we make tomorrow's history. Let's strive for a record of which we will be proud.

"Fac quam Romani faciunt cum es in Roma."

"Early Frost" by Douglas Parkhirst was presented March 10, 1962, in the District Seven One-act Play Festival at Patrick Henry High School. This play is the story of the disappearance of a small girl some fifty years ago. The solution to the mystery provides many entertaining and tense moments. The cast includes Virginia Chafin, Barbara Austin, Lillie Mae Meade, Linda Meade, Linda Ireson, and Judy Bradley. The play was under the direction of Miss Nancy Brown.

Homecoming

School spirit reached what has been termed as an all time high Friday night, October 19, 1962, when the Blue Devils met their Homecoming foe, the Warriors from Chilhowie.

Interest began to build up when the different clubs began their float making, each one keeping his theme a secret.

A feeling "one for all" and "all for one" began to grow Thursday night when the band and its director, Mr. McElwee, the cheerleaders, students, and some of the teachers met on the ball field for a bonfire rally.

School spirit was at its zenith when the array of beautiful floats, the band, and the would-to-be queens came onto the ball field under perfect football weather.

Big moment arrives--Sammy crowns Queen

At a Glance

The court and escorts: Sharon Lambert, Tommy Salyer-Catherine Bostic; Joyce Linkous-Joe Tomlison; Carolyn Smith-Sammy Gibson; Jorita Prater-Ronnie Milton; Janice Wilson-Larry Ramsey.

Various clubs concentrated on beauty, novelty, color, and originality. But as in all contests, not every one can win. The first prize went to the Beta Club; second prize to the Art Club; third prize to the FFA Club.

At halftime Janice Wilson was crowned Homecoming Queen, representing the Varsity team, and Jorita Prater, representing the Junior Varsity team. At this time the Castlewood Band and the Chilhowie Band gave an excellent performance. We went down in defeat but not without a desperate battle. The score was 13-0 in favor of the Warriors.

Forgetting our defeat, and the disappointment of the photographer not getting to the game in time to get the pictures of the floats, we assembled in the gym for our Homecoming dance. Everyone reported a most wonderful Homecoming celebration.

Happy moment arrives-Bill crowns Queen

What A Difference A Year Makes

We juniors served as ushers for the 1962 baccalaureate sermon. Now since we are seniors, who will serve at our graduation? The girls: Linda Ireson, Delores Sutherland, Sue Mason, Margaret Meadows, Alice Faye Skeens, Lynn Hankins. The boys: James Dickenson, Sammy Glovier, Douglas Skeens, R. N. Ball, Bobby Ball, Larry Ramsey.

Virginia Chafin and Bill Litton record their readings for forensic. Virginia won second place in poetry. She read "The Highwayman" by Alfred Noyes. Bill won third place in boys' prose reading.

TEACHERS ATTEND DISTRICT MEETING AT TAZEWELL, VA.

Much Enthusiasm Is Shown. Many Distinguished Visitors Are Present

The teachers of District K, composed of the counties of Lee, Scott, Wise, Dickerson, Buchanan, Russell and Tazewell, met in conference at Tazewell, Va., February 9th and 10th, to discuss different phases of educational work. The theme "A Stronger Professional Spirit," was well carried out in all the programs. The meeting, an enthusiastic one, was largely attended by Superintendent, Supervisors, Principals and Teachers of the district, and in addition a number of noted visitors from the State Board of Education and other institution of learning in the state were noted. Supt. Greaver of Tazewell County presided, nor did he fail to [illegible] part of

New Kitchen Being Installed To Take Place Of Old One Now Too Small

Material has been purchased for a new cabinet kitchen cabinet to replace the one bought last year, which has proved too small for the growing class. The old one, a Sellers cabinet, finished in fumed oak, will more than likely be sold to the highest bidder to help pay the cost of the new one.

The cabinet now under construction will be large enough to hold all dishes and cooking utensils which may come into the possession of the department for a number of years, and in addition, will furnish storage for canned goods and edibles which may be left over.

The dimensions of the new cabinet are as follows: Five feet long, with a height of six feet; the lower section will have a depth of 26 inches, [illegible]

The Ladies Of This Community Aid High School In Series Of Plays

A special series of four entertainments presented on four consecutive evenings is being arranged for the latter part of March or the first of April, with a view to giving the people something worth while. A tentative program calls for two plays, one of which will be given by the ladies of the community, the other by the high school, a stunt night and a public debate by high school boys.

The occasion for this array of home talent is dissatisfaction with the appearance of the school grounds and a desire on the part of the community as a whole to improve and beautify the same.

Nothing at present need be said concerning the individual programs [illegible] offered save that the subject for debate is whether or not the

All Dope Points To Cleveland As the Probable Winner Of Cup This Year

Soon the welcome cry of "Play ball," "Strike one," "Safe at first" and "Outside" will be heard on every hand, as the actors in our great national sport swing into line. Baseball with us is more than an amusement; it is an institution, a sport for red blooded men which professionalism has so far failed to gobble up. It has charms for the ameteur as well as the salaried man. Shall we not say that those ragged urchins playing on some vacant lot in every town get as much pleasure from the game as does the mighty Babe Ruth, the bambino of fandom?

The same spirit of outdoor sport which characterizes skiing, skating, [illegible] and coasting is the embodi-

The "Horse Fly" was the first publication by the senior class of Temple Hill High School in 1922, followed by the "Temple Hill Rooter" in 1935. After the new location and the naming of Castlewood High School, the next student publications were known as "The Sentinel" and the "Castletonian." "The Sentinel" was discontinued in May of 1962.

Virginia Chafin, president of the Beta Club, calls an impromptu meeting to make plans for the Homecoming float.

The Beta Club float won the first place award for two years in succession. Giving an underpriviledged pupil clothing for Christmas was another project of the Beta Club. Most of the outstanding students of the school belong to the Beta Club.

Earnestine Hensdill, president of S.C.A.

Since every student of our school belongs to the SCA, it is impossible for the entire student body to meet and work out the programs; therefore each room has a representative in this organization, also the class presidents.

The SCA sponsored many interesting projects this year, including assemblies, the Christmas program, Christmas baskets for the needy, and American Education Week, which included Senior Day. Patrolling the lunch lines and keeping hall bulletin boards up to date were other duties carried out by the SCA. One of the main objectives was to encourage a better school-community relationship.

On October 20, 1962, Earnestine Hensdill, Virginia Chafin, and Lynda Powers attended a meeting of the Clinch Valley District SCA at Graham High School, Bluefield, Virginia.

Mr. Tarwater crowns Joyce Linkous "Miss Castlewood High."

SCA SPONSORS

Beauty, charm, and poise were the atmosphere of the Miss Castlewood Beauty Pageant, held February 9, 1963, in the Castlewood auditorium. Twenty-two girls participated for the coveted title of "Miss Castlewood High." The girls were dressed in beautiful formal gowns which displayed their beauty under the lights. The judges were Mr. and Mrs. Delmar Siddens of Glade Springs, Virginia.

The climax came when Miss Joyce Linkous, a sophomore, was crowned "Miss Castlewood High" by Mr. John Tarwater, assistant principal. Miss Susan Tomlinson, chosen "Miss Congeniality" by the girls, received a dozen red roses.

Always give the other fellow a square deal.
Be reliable, sincere, adaptable, courteous.
Cooperate with those who have high ideals.
Dare to be self-reliant and self-respecting.
Enlist against poverty, disease, and crime.
Find out how you can assist your community.
Give freely to aid schools, arts, sciences.
Help those who are less fortunate than you.
Inspire others by loyal, unselfish service.
Judge all races and creeds without malice.
Keep this your land as Freedom's sanctuary.
Live wholesomely, nobly, enthusiastically.
Measure up to all obligations and promises.
Never take mean advantage of any situation.
Obey the laws—follow customs of decency.
Place the Creator before any other loyalty.
Quickly resist un-American ideas and acts.
Revere the flag our forefathers fought for.
See America, the land you love best, first.
Try to better your life by honorable plans.
Uphold freedom, justice, equality for all.
Voice your faith in America's great future.
Work for today and for coming generations.
X-ray often those elected to public office.
Yield only to righteousness and good sense.
Zealously protect the weak from the strong.

A shocking comedy scene!

Lynn Hankins, Shirley Dingus, Douglas Skeens, Larry Ramsey, Janet King, James Dickenson.

THREE-ACT PLAY

THE ENTIRE CAST: Miss Kilgore, Mr. Robinson, directors; Lynn Hankins, Larry Ramsey, James Dickenson, Shirley Dingus, Douglas Skeens, Linda Ireson, make-up artist; Henrietta Jenkins, R. N. Ball, Barbara Austin, Scotty White, Janet King.

Henrietta Jenkins, Barbara Austin, Scotty White are the nine characters for curtain call.

One of the highlights of the year for the Drama Club was its successful presentation of the three-act comedy, "Her Step-Husband," by Larry E. Johnson.

The play was given on February 15, 1963, for a night performance and on February 19 for the student body in the Castlewood High School auditorium. Both performances were well attended and enthusiastically received.

REFLECTIONS

We pause to turn and take a backward glance at our year past, and we behold a profusion of images of memory. Some are somber and some are very happy. They disappear, and then reappear. There are faces and places and things we knew in passing. There are games we had won and games we had lost. But these are only our memories.

The record of the year has been written, and we are proud. We know that the passing of time will fade our memories, but not completely efface them. Then there is only the record, the Castletonian. We are glad that our fortunes let us walk this way.
